Endometriosis affects around 1 in 10 girls, women, and gender diverse people, yet it remains underdiagnosed, undertreated, and often misunderstood. This webinar offers an overview of endometriosis with a focus on early recognition of symptoms, timely intervention, and practical management strategies for primary and community care in Aotearoa. Learnings from the 2025 Sydney World Congress on Endometriosis will be shared.

Whether you work in general practice, nursing, allied health, or health promotion, this session will help you better understand endometriosis, the impact it has on people's health and the Pathway and Guidelines on treatment and management.

Presented by Deborah Bush MNZM, QSM, who is co-founder of Endometriosis New Zealand, senior ambassador to the World Endometriosis Society, a global leader in endometriosis education and advocacy, well-published author, experienced keynote speaker nationally and internationally and who sits on two Health New Zealand | Te Whatu Ora councils
